Tenets For Readers And Reviewers

Harold C. Gardiner, S.J.

Originally written in 1944 as a series of articles for book reviews. The guidelines remain timeless as suggestions for the moral evaluation of fiction, to clarify thinking on what makes a book a morally bad book. These same principles may be applied to movies and television programs. An excellent reference guide for parents and students! Contains an application of Fr. Gardiner's principles in an evaluation of Candide written by a former Kolbe Academy high school student.

Resources for Parents

Discipline That Lasts a Lifetime

Dr. Ray Guarendi, 2003

Offers parents fresh and practical advice about disciplining children. Although contemporary culture has given discipline a spanking, says the author, it remains an important God-given tool for parents to form their children's character and to teach them the basics of living: character, moral responsibility, and respect.

Evaluating Writing

Dave Marks, 1988

Evaluating Writing is a companion book to the Writing Strands curriculum. The book teaches parents how to provide supportive and effective feedback on writing assignments. It includes information on common conditions that make teaching composition difficult and on common writing problems, examples of feedback on real assignments, explanations of drafting, and spelling rules.
